Clayton County Vice Chairman Wole Ralph Selected as Regional Person of the Week

March 16, 2012 – Jonesboro, GA - Clayton County Vice Chairman Wole Ralph has been selected by The Civic League for Regional Atlanta as their “Regional Person of the Week,” beginning March 19, 2012. The program seeks to recognize those who are making significant contributions to the Atlanta region. The Selection Committee stated that Vice Chairman Ralph stood out to them for his commitment to civic participation and leadership across Regional Atlanta on economic development and job creation and for serving those who need help, and making others aware of their needs.

“I am continuously working to help identify job opportunities for the people of Clayton County and our region as a whole. Our economy has changed and many people are in a dire financial state. My primary concern is and always has been the well-being of our citizens and their families,” said Vice Chairman Ralph.

The Civic League for Regional Atlanta is an independent, nonpartisan, nonprofit organization that is educating, engaging, and empowering the people of metropolitan Atlanta to address and solve regional issues. The Atlanta region includes the 4.1 million people living in Cherokee, Clayton, Cobb, DeKalb, Douglas, Fayette, Fulton, Gwinnett, Henry, and Rockdale counties. Information on each “Regional Person of Week” can be found on The Civic League for Regional Atlanta’s website at:
